An Incident of the War. The Vicksburg correspondent of the Cinclanati Gazette relates the following, of

" A wife who dwelt in the West, beyon the lakes, whose husband is an officer in the army, had not heard from him for some weeks. Two small boys were with him, their only ones. While she sat at home, resding a paper, her eyes fell upon a no-tice of the death of her busband. All the success in finding large tracis of this valtenderness of a mother's love, all the strength of a wife's devotion, nerved her to start immediately for her children, and clasp them to a widowed heart. Day after day passed, how slowly, let a mother tell; how tedious, let a widow speak who knows her idol broken in a distant land. Two weeks were past ere she reached Vicks burg. Three days on a sandbar! What torture! At last she reached the hoped-for city. As the boat neared the wharf, she looked at the crowd, and saw her two boys upon ponies and beside them the father and busband. One long, piercing cry of joy filled the air; the husband flew, rither than ran, and took the lifeless form in his arms. It was too much of joy for a heart overcharged with grief. The strings snapped and reason tottered for a time, to fall, in two days, to the sleep of death."
